Stimulating pain-sensing neurons in a fruit fly larva’s central nervous system, labeled in green, helps researchers in the lab of LSI faculty member Bing Ye, Ph.D., study how experiences during development affect the mature nervous system and behavior.